

Once, Twice, Three Times Lucky!

Although they don't know it, Serena and her babies are lucky cats.

Things didn't start out well, though. Serena was not spayed, and she had her four kittens under a shed for protection. Then, her person moved and couldn't take the family because they couldn't reach the kittens.

Things started looking up for the mama and the little ones a few weeks later. Serena's person came back to feed her every day. A Paws Cause volunteer—one of the best rescuers ever—devised a contraption to get the kittens out from under the shed. Under the watchful eye of Serena, she got all four out in no time.

The search for a foster home yielded a jackpot result—Dr. Tarica, who works at El Camino Veterinary Hospital in Atascadero, and her family volunteered for the job! What more could a mama kitty want than a vet to help her raise her babies. The family is getting all the love and medical attention they need.

The next lucky break will happen when everyone gets a forever home. How about it—do you have room for one or two of these sweethearts? Get in touch with Paws Cause for information at 805-226-8311.

paws
cause

www.northcountypawscause.org

Facebook: northcountypawscause